Ike And Nation Await Reports On Sec. Dulles

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower and the nation await today the results of cancer tests which could determine whether John Foster Dulles will be able to continue as secretary of state.

Although an operation on Dulles Friday for hernia was termed successful, concern increased in the capital that he may have a recurrence of cancer. Dulles will be 71 on Feb. 25.

A cancerous condition caused an operation on Dulles Nov. 7, 1956. A portion of his lower intestine was removed at that time.

There was an interval of more than 24 hours in 1956 before it was announced a cancerous condition had been found. That condition was said to have been cleared up by the operation then.

However, more definitive tests have since longer. One type involved staining of tissue specimens overnight. There was no indication of the kind of tests made in Dulles case.

There was no official explanation for the delay on the full medical report. Normally, at least a preliminary pathologist's report is made to the surgeons before an operation is completed.

The President's personal physician, Gen. Howard M. Snyder, witnessed the operation and later reported to the President. But the White House would not comment on the nature of the report.

Dulles became conscious about dusk Friday night. He was reported in good spirits and asked for a newspaper.

Dulles entered Walter Reed Hospital Tuesday after he returned from conferences with Allied leaders in London, Paris and Bonn. He was described as having suffered considerable pain during that trip.

State at Foot in Tax Charged to Residents

WASHINGTON (AP)—Arkansas is at the bottom and California is at the top of a federal list which shows the amount of state and local taxes charged to residents of the various states.

The average Arkansan pays $100 a year, compared to $238 in California, counting every man, woman and child in the states.

Those figures, compiled by the Census Bureau and released yesterday, are based on reports from more than 100,000 government units below the federal level.

The reports were for fiscal 1957, which in most states ended a year, and a half ago.

After Arkansas, states with the lowest per capita taxes were Alabama, $101; South Carolina, $104; Kentucky, $107; Mississippi, $108; and West Virginia, $112.

The highest per capita taxes, after California, were New York, $229; Nevada, $229; Massachusetts, $210; Connecticut, $205; and Oregon, $201.

Nevada ranked highest in spending at $368 and Arkansas was lowest at $148.

The report said education accounted for more than one-third of all spending of state and local governments in fiscal 1957. Wyoming was high on a per capita basis at $120 and the District of Columbia was low at $47.

U. S., Russia Carry Out Exchange Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and the Soviet Union have successfully carried out two thirds of their big cultural exchange agreement without a major hitch.

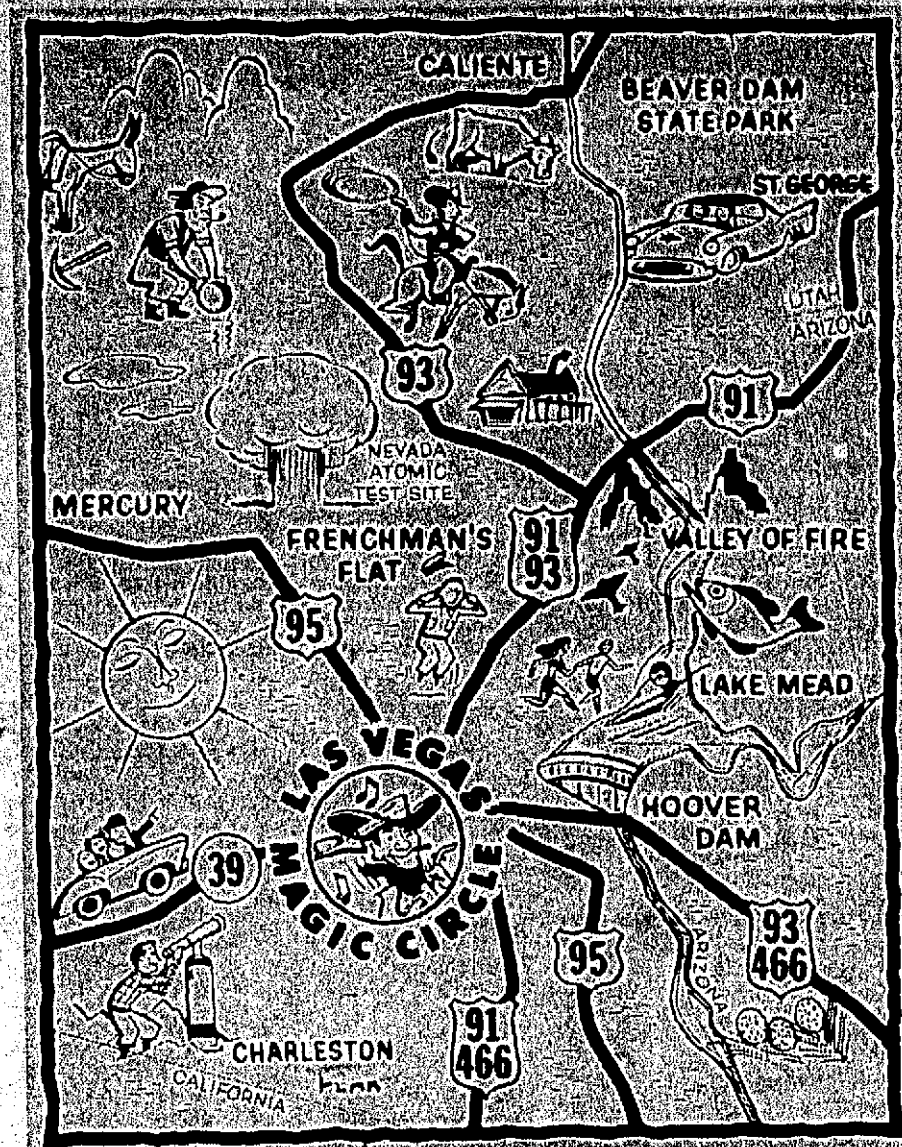

This historic agreement, signed about a year ago, is working so well that both sides are seriously considering extending it when it expires next January.

A summary shows that more than 1,500 Soviet citizens and Americans have visited each other's country as part of 151 official delegations during the first 12 months.

The swap of delegates has started a flow of private tourists. About 5,000 Americans visited the Soviet Union in the first year after the agreement. In return, 66 Soviet tourists, the first to visit this country since World War II, arrived late last year.

More Americans than Soviets have been involved in exchanges thus far, but this is due primarily to a Soviet delay in arranging reciprocal tours of the United States.

Probers Call More Persons for Testimony

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate probers called 10 more persons today for questioning about charges that New York mobsters use phony labor unions to exact tribute from the jukebox coin machine industry.

Robert F. Kennedy, labor-management committee counsel, said Alex Cohen, whom he described as a powerful figure among labor unionists dealing with coin machine operators, would get a chance to answer testimony linking Cohen's name with gangsters.

James Cagiano of Flushing, L.I., a former associate of Cohen in labor unions, testified Thursday that Cohen used to receive phone calls from John Dioguardi (Johnny Dio) and from Tony (Ducks, Corallo).

Kennedy said Albert Denver, head of a trade organization known as Tonic Operators of New York, Inc., and Sylvia Goldberg, a former labor union employee, would be among the witnesses.

Stephen Vladeck, counsel to the Retail Clerks Union in New York, testified the international union has expelled both Cagiano and Cohen for their handling of locals which attempted to organize machine repair and maintenance mechanics.

Kennedy said Cohen and Cagiano at one time headed rival unions picketing each other in a fight that caused havoc in the industry. The rivals finally merged into a single unit of the Retail Clerks Union, with Cagiano as president and Cohen as secretary-treasurer, Kennedy said.

Cagiano described a stormy career in a variety of coin machine service unions. He said these locals' main purpose was to picket business establishments that installed machines not owned by members of the trade associations with which the unions had gained.

West to Draft Formula for Germany Talks

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Western leaders expect to draft within the next month a new formula for German reunification. They hope it may promote serious negotiations with the Soviet Union for uniting East and West Germany.

The shape of the formula is still to be determined, but it is expected to push the Western request for free all German elections somewhere into the background.

Many experts now believe that the unifying process could go on for as much as two years before nationwide elections were held. In the meantime practical steps in the economic and political field could be taken to bring the two

Castro Elevated Today To Cuba's Premiership

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

HAVANA (AP)—Fidel Castro vaulted to Cuba's premiership today with wide powers to speed up the social revolution born of the rebels' victory in arms.

The 32-year-old military commander assumes the administration of a country still restless after two years of civil war and confronted with serious economic and diplomatic problems.

His first task is to curb threatening strikes, especially in the vital sugar industry, and find jobs for the half-million unemployed in a work force of 12,204,000.

Another issue facing Castro is the fate of Cubans who took asylum in various foreign embassies in Havana after dictator Fulgenio Batista fled in the dawn of New Year's Day.

Cuba's revolutionary regime has branded these Batista supporters as ordinary criminals. The refusal to approve safe-conduct passage for them out of the country has led to disputes with several Latin American governments giving them refuge, including Argentina, Mexico and Chile.

Castro had the assurances of, retiring Premier Jose Miró Cardona, 56, that he would have the opportunity to select his collaborators freely.

In moving up to the political front, Castro took a step that many felt was leading toward the presidency.

Pressure had been mounting for Castro to take over the provisional government when the surprise cabinet shakeup was announced Friday night.

The Havana newspaper Prensa Libre this week had urged the reluctant leader to assume the presidency held by his hand-picked choice, Manuel Urrutia.

John Wilson Is Speaker at B&PW Meet

Hope's Business and Professional Women's Club was honored Thursday by having John Wilson speak to 28 members and one guest.

Dinner was served at the appointed hour in the Diamond Cafe dining room. Mr. Wilson pointed out the development of Hope since its birth and the progress that has been made "from the early years of the Iron Mountain Railroad, which is now Missouri Pacific; and, the first boiler to operate the light plant to the present day stream turbine."

Hope now affords a city manager and a planning board. Mr. Wilson quoted a poem with reference to small town advantages plus personal interests, where people live and have their being, and one becomes an individual and not just the masses.

A small town is a place where one says "hello" and means it and/or "where have you been we have missed you" attitude. Mr. Wilson emphasized the fact that Hope is a friendly and thriving town and will continue to be that way.

This Is Age of Visiting Foreigners

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Editor

The man-of-the-week: West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt. The place: Washington and New York.

The quote: "I know how that our American friends are strongly behind us. You can rely on us just as we know we can put our trust in you."

This is an age of official travel. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles can scrawl the phrase, "Dulles was here," in more places even than the much-traveled and legendary Kilroy of World War II fame.

Two official visitors to the United States in the last few weeks have represented widely-separated ideological beliefs. The first was Anastas Mikoyan, deputy premier of Soviet Russia. Mikoyan, an smilingly said Soviet Russia and the United States had two alternatives: Friendship or war.

Mikoyan See That
He also repeated the communist demand that the Western powers get out of Berlin. When he got home to Moscow, Mikoyan said the people of the U. S. wanted an end to the cold war, and reported he saw a chance for a thaw.

Ticker tape parades are a traditional part of New York City's welcome to a visiting foreign dignitary or a national hero. There was no ticker tape parade for Mikoyan.

But he should have seen the one for Willy Brandt. It was a cold, rainy, miserable day in New York when he arrived.

St. Valentine Must Have Been a True Saint to Leave Such Love

By MARY ANITA LASETER

The man for whom this day was named was truly a saint. Who else could have instigated the celebration which has for its key, the word Love?

Like grains of sand, there are untold numbers of meanings of the simple, four-letter word. For some, Love is the uncontrollable force which can mean self-sacrifice for either a cause, a country, or a companion. In a much less dramatic sense, Love is the beautiful, everyday togetherness of spirits.

When we think of a term like Love, no better illustration can be found than that of a mother and her child. True, a good thing is sometimes overdone, but, generally, mother-love is the epitome of the emotion we have been discussing.

On February 14, St. Valentine's Day, all thoughts of Love are fused together and carry one meaning — Sweethearts. Legend and history tell many versions of the origin of this day, but all agree that for one reason or another, this is the season of lovers.

Birds chose their mates on this day, according to legend. Also this was the day of a Roman feast, in ancient times, in which young men picked the names of eligible girls from a receptacle and thus became their sweetheart for the coming year.

How did St. Valentine get into the picture? After much study and research on the subject, Wayne Freyd, in writing for "The American Weekly," said this is probably what happened:

"For more than 400 years Roman soldiers were forbidden to marry a precept based on the theory that married men didn't make good soldiers. One bright morning in the year 260 A. D., a decree from Emperor Claudius was posted in Rome's public square, extending this prohibition of wedlock. Hundreds of young people, all of whom would be affected, crowded around to read the bad news. Among them was the priest Valentine.

"As he mingled with the disheartened citizens, Valentine was a compelling figure. On his right hand was a ring, a deep purple amethyst, engraved with a tiny image of Cupid, the pagan god of love. He announced his intention to defy the proclamation by marrying secretly any young couples who requested it. Those who wish to marry may recognize me by this ring," he said.

As you might expect, this saint was eventually executed by the government he defied. The date was February 14, and many assert it was "in the cause of the God of Love."

Whether he or someone else began the custom of exchanging greeting cards on this day, is another matter for disagreement. But whoever should get the credit for this pleasant custom is really immaterial.

The fact that it exists is all that matters, and girls everywhere are grateful for it. That is true of big girls, little girls, old girls, young girls. Why, you probably still have your first Valentine carefully tucked away somewhere, if you fall into the feminine category!

Furthermore, the meaning is the same whether the words are an impassioned quotation from Elizabeth Barrett Browne like "I love thee with the breath, smiles, tears, of all my life," or they ask the familiar question, "Will you be my Valentine?"

Hope Youth Center To Sponsor 'Blimp'

The world's fattest man can be seen in Hope, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 16-17-18, at the corner of Second and Main Streets. Weighing 763 pounds, age 53 and with a 104 inch waistline, Martin Levy, sometimes called the "Human Blimp" is an ex-heavyweight wrestling champion of the world. He will be in his specially constructed bus.

This attraction is sponsored by the Hope Youth Center and though no tickets will be sold, a silver donation from each person is suggested.

The Youth Center is getting ready for summer by installing an air conditioning system and their share from this attraction will be used toward this expense.

PICASSO'S UNESCO MURAL—A 400-square-foot mural by Spanish Pablo Picasso decorates the new United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) headquarters in Paris. UNESCO says it's "painted in the tradition of antique and modern art, relating the victories of light and peace over those of evil and death."

Famous Painter Dies Unexpectedly

PROVINCETOWN, Mass. (AP)—John Whorf, 56, world-famed painter, died today while he was being rushed by ambulance to a hospital from his Provincetown home where he suffered a heart attack.

He was elected a member of the National Academy in 1947. Harvard gave him an honorary master of arts degree in 1958.

Senate Probers Will Question Hoffa Monday

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate probers said today James R. Hoffa, president of the Teamsters Union, has been called to give testimony, questioning Monday.

Hoffa, who previously has been questioned publicly by 1958 committee, also has been directed to produce additional financial records.

Teamsters Local 206, described as gangster-ridden, was pictured in testimony received by the Senate Labor-Management Committee Friday as using threats and intimidation to muscle in on the jukebox business in the New York area.

New York labor unionist Alex Cohen was questioned about this by Counsel Robert F. Kennedy but refused to answer, invoking his Fifth Amendment protection against possible self-incrimination.

Kennedy asked Cohen, who heads the United Industrial Union, if all the unions in which he had been active in the jukebox field had not been set up to protect employers, rather than employees.

As Cohen declined to answer, Kennedy said that the witness lately had turned his efforts to help Local 206 and what Kennedy called "the underworld figure" behind it to establish a monopoly over the coin-machine business in New York.

He asked Cohen if what he was selling were not "his" gangster connections and the intimidation that went with them.

Among Cohen's backers and associates, Kennedy said, were such notorious figures as Carmine Lombardo, Anthony (Tony) Ducks, Corallo, and John Dioguardi (Johnny Dio).

The committee plans to resume its public hearings Tuesday and to wind up the New York phase of its investigation with two more days of testimony.

Alford Seeks Names of His Opponents

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Dale Alford (D-Ark.) today asked Atty. Gen. William Rogers to give him the names of the persons who asked the Justice Department to investigate Alford's election last November.

He also asked Rogers for the names and places of other elections in which he challenged the department's right to investigate his election, a right which he said belongs only to the House of Representatives.

Justice Department spokesman said subsequently the department was investigating possible violation of federal laws.

Alford, a Little Rock segregationist, defeated former Rep. Brooks Hays (D-Ark.) last November by running as a last minute write-in candidate.

Alford told Rogers that he was seeking information because of the "unusual manner" in which the investigation was being conducted. He said he never had heard of an investigation of a congressional election which had not been announced publicly by the department and never had heard of such an inquiry being made where the department "did not have the decency of informing the member concerned" that an investigation was to be made.

Alford said he learned of the investigation only "vaguely."

In reference to his request for the name or names of persons who asked for the investigation, Alford said the department first made the statement that a "reputable official" in Washington had made the request, but that after his House talk last Wednesday the department said the request had come from local citizens.

Alford said he knows positively that the request did not come from the House Administration Committee, to which the House has referred the question of a possible investigation.

West to Draft

Germanies closer together. Diplomatic informants said today that the United States, Britain, France and West Germany are guided by two main tactical considerations in the wholesale review of their German policies which is now under way.

Their primary aim is to test to the limit — without sacrificing vital Western interests — the possibility that the Soviet government may be ready for serious negotiations and compromises on the unity issue.

Several Western concessions already have become known as a result of exchanges among the governments in Washington, London, Paris and Bonn. These concessions include:

1. A decision to propose in a forthcoming note to the Soviet government that German advisers participate in a prospective East-West foreign ministers conference.

2. A declared readiness — recently stated by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles — to have a foreign ministers conference with the Soviet Union without advance agreement on a detailed program of discussion.

3. A decision that the reunification of Germany through free elections — the formula to which the Western powers have clung for many years — is not the only possible way to obtain German unity.

Authorities said today that any merger plan acceptable to the West would require at some point all-German elections to choose a new unity government but that the elections would not have to be a first step by any means.

He fought Nazism

"The President gave me firm assurance that the United States will defend the people of West Berlin against any threat to their freedom," he said.

And he said the President told him: "A coward has to die 1,000 times and a brave man only once."

It is part of U. S. national history that this nation forgives its enemies. It also is part of the national nature to cheer for the underdog.

Both of these characteristics may have played a part in the reception for Willy Brandt.

But sympathies aside, there are two characteristics of the 44-year-old West Berlin mayor about which there is no doubt.

He hated and fought Adolf Hitler's Nazism.

And he hates and continues to fight Communism.

In Berlin last month, he told the city parliament: "Free Berlin belongs to the free world."

stage and television. Many curious things will begin to dawn on you after being in Vegas a few hours; for instance, try to find a clock anywhere. Time stands still; this is a place where everyone can escape from the clock's routine dictation.

The second day of your stay (after the initial shock has worn off), take a circle trip around town, or perhaps around the two towns — or worlds — that are rolled together here. It's a Magic Circle — at least magic in that even in daylight you still can't quite believe it. There are the mushrooming, smart residential sections whose gracefully curved streets push further and further out into the desert each month; an ultra-modern high school campus and some 63 churches of all faiths.

Pursuit of Luck

Then back downtown to experience Fremont Street in daylight. It isn't quite as awe-inspiring with the mammoth neon off, but just watch and listen to the crowds thronging the streets. You spot the first-time visitors by the incredulous expression on their faces; the other tourists, with a day's indoctrination, have the same serious look as dog their more expensively dressed brothers under the skin out on The Strip. It comes from the pursuit of Lady Luck.

Fremont Street is like none other in America. Even when you're buying groceries, drugs, or curios you can't find a store without a slot machine's siren, a siren, a siren — an elaborate, Sears store which atoned by displaying startling beach toys in its smartly decorated windows. Fremont Street is constantly having its face lifted and kept beautiful like a woman who never lets herself get old.

It may not be diplomatic to say, but you can have a wonderful week end or "Quickie" vacation in Vegas without gambling. The luxurious but economic floor shows, hotels, pools and food. The Strip, the people and the shops on downtown Fremont Street, the never-to-be-forgotten Magic Circle trips you can take out from this American Baghdad on the Desert.

Man-Made Wonder

My favorite is southeast on U.S. 93 to Hoover (Boulder) Dam on the border of Nevada and Arizona. Probably among the best publicized of man-made wonders, it is always a thrilling experience. Highest dam in the world (equal to a 60-story skyscraper), it is overwhelming whether you stand at its base in the Colorado River Canyon, or go down in the elevators (equal to 44 stories) to see the Buck Rogers-like power station.

Back of Hoover Dam is Lake Mead, its blue waters backing up for more than a hundred miles to furnish speedboating, sailing, water skiing, swimming, unsurpassed photography and fishing for the now-natural black bass. And it is not an unusual sight to witness jets from Nellis Air Force Base leaving graceful trails of white vapor against the vivid blue sky and brownish-red canyon walls.

You can spend the night at the green oasis known as Boulder City, the U. S. Government's planned "model city" just above the dam and overlooking Lake Mead. Next morning return via a road skirting the cliffs above Lake Mead, to Las Vegas Wash Beach and into Henderson, site of vast chemical and processing plants.

Off-Beat Trips

Another rewarding trek out of Las Vegas' Magic Circle is north to the colorful and weird rock formations of the Valley of Fire State Park. Then on U.S. 93 to explore, from ride roads, a little publicized part of Nevada. The town of Caliente is a pivot point for off-beat trips to the pastel-tinged cliffs of Rainbow Canyon, the red and orange Cathedral Gorge, Kearsarge Canyon and Beaver Dam State Parks; and the prosperous cattle ranching and mining country.

Once back on U.S. 91, you go north and through a tiny corner of Arizona (Littlefield) in the serene Virgin River Valley to St. George, "Utah's Little Dixie."

For lower in altitude (2,770 feet) than the rest of the Beehive State, fruit blossoms of every kind appear months earlier than in any other spot in the Rockies. Here once was a winery; grapes still flourish; cotton and lemons can be grown. It was the winter home of Brigham Young, the towering rock formations and soil range from orange to brilliant red.

Another Magic Circle trip out of Las Vegas is to Mt. Charleston. From here you can witness nuclear detonations 60 miles away (Ground Zero) at Frenchman's Flat or Yucca Flats at those rare times when the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission is using the Nevada Atomic Test Site.

sible without an appraisal to put an accurate price tag on the 59-year-old, federally owned system. But he said its estimated cost to the government less depreciation was fixed last July 1 at approximately $18 million dollars.

McElroy's proposal would authorize sale of any or all parts of the system not necessary for military or civil facilities owned by the Air Force and the Federal Aviation Agency.

A friendly legislator has introduced it for him. No action has been taken on the measure yet.

Under the Arkansas constitution the Legislature can repeal an initiated act but a two-thirds vote of both legislative branches is necessary.

Smith will be performing his duties as page next week. And it is possible that some action on the bill may be taken then.

The ideal travel wardrobe for spring might very well include these soft and gentle designs from the collection of Vera Maxwell. All of them would be equally wearable at home and in several seasons. Coat (left) is cut from raw silk. Sleeves end just below the elbow and big patch pockets have side openings. Chiffon-weight, worsted, glen plaid is used (center) for slim suit with short, double-breasted jacket, fastened with leather buttons. Jacket has wide, deeply notched collar. Three-piece suit (right) is cut with straight jacket lined in the print linen of the blouse. Suit color is amethyst.

DOROTHY DIX

Dear Dorothy Dix:

I'm going steady with a nice boy. I think I truly love him and he loves me. We're on our way to becoming engaged and married, but I have a few doubts on which I need help — your help. My religion forbids divorce and I realize that when we take the matrimonial step it will be for keeps. I want it to be a happy for keeps. Is there any rule, any test, any plan by which we can assure the success of our marriage? — Alice G.

Dear Alice: A volume could be written about the things that indicate a happy marriage. You could read it, follow it, and still wind up in misery. Human beings are fallible, they rarely follow a thing undertaken by them is unpredictable. Here's one simple rule that is as applicable as any: Love your congeniality. Put aside, for the moment, every other consideration. Ignore the physical attraction you have for each other. Forget money, educational background, families and even love itself. Ask each other: Do we yes-yes each other? Do we enjoy the same things? Do we have the same tastes in food? Do we like the same games, sports, books, plays and people? Can we discuss a subject without getting into a hot argument? If the answers are affirmative, it's safe for you to tune the wedding bells. After all, the people we love and enjoy are those whose thoughts and ideas jibe with ours. This is true of friendship and of marriage. A happy home depends for its existence on a husband and wife seeing eye to eye, being able to talk amiably together and to be each other's most admiring, appreciative audience.

Dear Dorothy Dix:

I work for a married doctor. Over a period of time he has been treating a woman patient and their relationship seems to be more than the doctor should order. She comes in at any time, regardless of appointments, he never has me around when she's there; and I have been told to forget about her bills. What is my responsibility in this matter? Should I overlook it or say something? — Friend of Both

Dear Friend: I can appreciate your concern but don't overstep your bounds of employment. In the first place, there could be several reasons for his conduct. The nature of the woman's ailments may require consultation at odd times and she may prefer privacy in them. Other things could dictate this seemingly suspicious conduct, too. At any rate it's doubtful if a few words from you would alter the situation. So keep quiet.

Dear Dorothy Dix:

My daughter has the unsanitary habit of biting her nails. I've tried to tell her how awful her hands look but, nothing sinks in. She follows your advice avidly and I'm sure a few words from you will influence her. — G. L.

Dear G. L.: I doubt if your daughter needs anyone to tell her how ugly bitten fingernails are, but she does need encouragement to break the habit. Nail biting is a tenacious habit that usually needs more than will power to break. Cut rubber gloves for your child to wear in her leisure moments. Ask the druggist for a harmless but bitter medicine to apply to her nails. This helps discourage nail-biting.

Would Give Workers Additional Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to give county employees of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service the benefits of federal insurance and retirement laws has been introduced by Rep. Wilbur Mills (D-Md.).

At present these workers aren't classified as either federal or state employees since they draw salary from each.

Mills said his bill still wouldn't specify whether the employees are state or federal, but would extend to them federal benefits.

It would bring them under the federal Civil Service retirement plan and make them eligible for government life insurance. The county committees also could raise pay of the employees in line with last year's federal pay increase legislation.

Page Introduces Arkansas Bill

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A 17-year-old page in the Arkansas House has written a bill to repeal the state's 30-year-old law against teaching the theory of evolution. And has had it introduced.

The author is Griffin Smith Jr., whose late grandfather was chief justice of the Arkansas Supreme Court and whose father is a Little Rock lawyer.

Young Smith, now a high school senior, does a biology course in the high grade and says that evolution came up only "in a round about way." He is interested in science and feels the theory should be taught, or at least another scientific theory that could, and should, be brought out.

"I'm not saying that anyone must believe in it," he adds.

With a little help, Smith drew up a 10-paragraph bill which would repeal an initiated act passed in 1928 to forbid the teaching of evolution.

Rayburn in Protest to Interest Rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) founded a strong protest today against administration proposals for an increase in the interest rate on rural power loans.

Rayburn told the National Rural Electric Cooperative Assn. he favors keeping the rate at two percent even if this amounts to a government subsidy.

"Why not a little for the millions who until a few years ago were the underprivileged?" Rayburn asked.

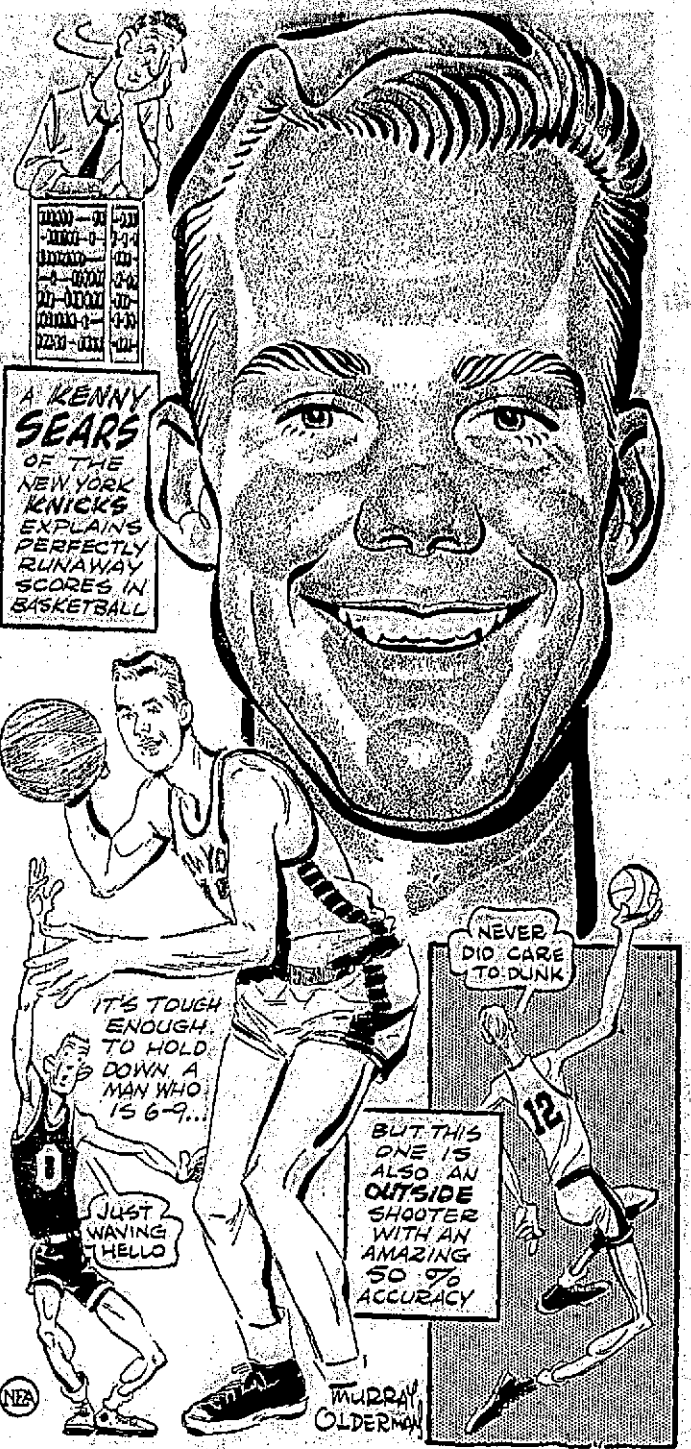

Simultaneously, with Rayburn's speech, Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson argued for the other side at a news conference. He said administration critics are making misleading statements in the fight.

Benson said the administration aim is to strengthen the rural power movement and prevent its socialization.

The secretary insisted that the rural power program has progressed more in six years of the Eisenhower administration than in the preceding 17 years under Democratic administration.

He said government loans under the present administration total $1,200,000,000 compared with $2,600,000,000 during the previous 17 years.

CAN'T KEEP 'EM DOWN

OUT OF BOOKS

Field & Stream

By Joe Stetson
Dog Editor

I was asked to stop by a kennel and take a look at a litter of collie pups.

"There are three," the man said, "and I'd like you to tell me which I should buy."

They were of the same sex and similar in size, color, type and temperament — except that one had good collie ears, standing well on the head and dropped over nicely at the tips.

I reported back that there was little choice otherwise, but he should buy the pup with the correct ear-drops. Later I found that he had changed his mind and bought a puppy of another breed.

Three months later I noticed a young collie on the rambling porch of an old house in the neighborhood. He looked familiar, but I couldn't quite seem to place him.

"Nice pup you've got," I said to the owner. "He looks familiar, but for some reason he doesn't all into place. He looks like a pup I saw at X-Kennel, but that particular pup had ears which dropped forward at the tip."

"Yes," said the proud owner, "they were that way when I got him, but I massaged them every day until they stood up straight."

Breeders break their necks breeding what they believe is the proper collie ear, one that helps give the breed the expression they desire. And this chap devoted special pains to "correct" the situation and give his dog the price ear that collie breeders consider an abomination.

Far be it from me to claim that the honest and value of a dog is dependent upon the carriage of an ear.

From the standpoint of appearance, its all in the way you look at things.

DOGS

BREED DEVELOPMENT
BY FARLEY MANNING

Some modern dog breeds were created out of existent canine material by specific persons, following austere scientific principles to attain an ideal end. The names of these creators are known, the dates and places of their labors are items of recorded history.

Other breeds seem to have "just happened" — to have appeared in some region or other without human forethought.

Actually, the development of such "regional" dogs was not just happenstance. These breeds were "folk" creations. They were born out of the needs of a community, in the same fashion that a regional folk music developed, or an ancient balladry, or throughout the history of language, language itself.

Examples of the first, or "tailor-made," category include, among others, the recreation of the ancient Irish Wolfhound by Captain G. A. Graham (a Scot) during 1802-85; the creation (1880-91) of the Galamhann Terrier by Captain John Edwards in Wales; and the development and definition of the English Setter, during 30 odd years following 1825 by Edward Taverack and R. L. Purcell Dismellin.

American examples of the "folk" category include the Cockerhound, the old-fashioned American farm collie, the American Water Spaniel, the Chesapeake Bay Dog (a retriever), and the Alaskan Malamute.

Actually most of the approximately 250 breeds of dogs now recognized as "pure-bred" throughout the world belong in the "folk created" category, but have been standardized, refined, and in most cases improved by the scientific procedures of particular breeders who have stressed certain characteristics as the most useful or desired.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS
SYDNEY (AP) — A California lawyer, his wife and four children have come to Australia as immigrants and full-time chicken farmers.

They are Edwin Saunders, his wife and their children Linda, 11, Donna 5, Robert 3, and Theresa 11 months.

"I had a general law practice in Los Angeles, but chicken raising has always been my relaxation," Saunders said. "I raised 10,000 chickens in my spare time at Sonoma, near San Francisco."

Saunders said the family would live in Brisbane, raise chickens, and manufacture poultry equipment.

GIL YEAGER had no idea how long he had slept before the sound came down the night to break through the barrier of sleep and awaken him. He lay quiet, wondering. It was black dark and the wind was howling and puffing and rumbling about the corners of the bunkhouse. Also there was rain, pounding on the roof, splashing heavily down from the eaves, while the wet breath of it came misting through an open window.

This, the wind and the rain, Yeager thought, was what had awakened him. He turned over and reached again for sleep.

But now once more there was the sound, one there was no mistaking, riding in on the wind from the south. Way out there a rifle had snapped, and now, quickly, a third flat, hard report cut through the voice of the storm.

Yeager surged from his blankets. "Jed!" he called sharply.

Jed was already reaching for his boots. "I heard that one, Gil. Alec's in trouble out there!"

They caught up guns and broke from inner to outer dark, and where the one had been dry and warm, the other was a torment of chill wind and drenching rain.

Had been Gil Yeager's first thought that he and Jed must catch a saddle and get out there where Alec Trezevant, held lonely post in this black, and stormy world, but now carried on the wind was the sound of speeding hoofs, and then it was a rider racing in from the south.

"Alec!" yelled Yeager, hoping, banging away, emptying his gun and jamming in fresh shells, where his shots went after they passed the deer evidently he neither knew nor cared.

Then from a point of woods, almost in line with the deer, came a scream — not a yell of warning, the man screamed. I knew he had been hit. The deer vanished into the woods and quiet, blessed quiet, descended on the valley.

Then from the direction of the scream came a hunter in red clothing. It was a profound relief to see him, right side up, in good working order. Some of those shots had missed him by a hair.

A later check showed that there were no casualties in that area. Why nobody was killed I'm sure I can't say. Maybe we were just lucky. There is certainly no other way to account for it.

As I say, the annual human harvest is something to be reckoned with each ginning season. After participating in the Battle of Crooked Rifle Mountain, my only wonder is to understand why the yearly toll among hunters is not higher than it is.

(Released by The Register and Tribune Syndicate, 1958)

the mood of the answer he got. Several guns opened up, shooting at the sound of his call, their combined reports a pounding, sullen threat in the dark.

Something plucked at Yeager's sleeve and a scorching line streaked across his left forearm. It was as if, for a fractional second, a thread of live fire had touched him, meant for his heart, but he was not hurt.

He heard a man's stricken cry and then, working out of the gloom, came a riderless horse, spooked and running wild. The animal smashed into the corral fence not 10 yards from where Yeager crouched, bounced off and raced away.

Yeager shot at the sound of the voice, and this brought another flurry of answering fire. After which there was a breaking rush away on either hand.

Over at the ranchhouse, Alec Trezevant's rifle struck up a measured rumble, and he was the wink and crash of shooting in return. Until now, Yeager had moved, and acted, pretty much in a mechanical way. His actions instinctive and without any greatly considered feeling.

But now he knew a sudden, convulsing rage. For Alec Trezevant was in that ranchhouse, and the combine guns were shooting that way. He started to move to Alec's support, but stopped abruptly as two riders came straight in on him at a furious gallop, carrying from Jed's corral.

But Jed made no other answer, so there was no way to tell if he'd heard that shouting warning. There was, Yeager decided, but one thing to do. He must drop back among the ranch buildings, gambling that an about frontal rush would be hesitant in developing. And those two riders who had galloped out for they were the immediate danger.

Yeager got his shoulder against the end of the saddle, and sidled past a corner listening, probing the dark the best he could. There could be no mistake in this stark, deadly game.

No Summit Meet Delay, Says President

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower apparently believes that a summit conference late this year is a definite possibility. Such a meeting would bring him and other Western government heads face-to-face with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev for a discussion of critical East-West issues. These undoubtedly would include questions of Germany and disarmament.

Whether a conference is actually arranged probably will depend partly on whether Western negotiations in the meantime ease Soviet pressures to get the United States, Britain and France out of West Berlin.

Eisenhower himself brought up the subject of a summit meeting briefly at his news conference Tuesday in discussing a question about the effect of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' illness on prospects for a foreign ministers meeting.

The President said he thought that Dulles' condition would not delay a foreign ministers conference, but noted that there has been no agreement with the Soviets yet on actually holding such a session. Then he added:

"I believe the Russians themselves are more concerned. Mr. Khrushchev is concerned in a number of government meetings, as he calls an informal and without an agenda type."

"Well, that would take a great deal of preparation."

Soviet spokesmen, including Khrushchev and Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan have repeatedly called for a heads-of-government conference.

Despite the disagreement over the amount of advance preparation needed, informed officials say that a summit conference is indeed a possibility as things now stand.

Diplomats have reported that British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan is particularly interested in such a meeting. Macmillan faces the prospect of parliamentary elections within a year. Washington authorities say British political pressures were responsible for bringing about the summit conference at Geneva in 1955.

News Briefs

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP)—Miss Leona E. Wilson, 69, died at a hospital here last night of the effects of carbon monoxide fumes, which overcame her at her home Monday.

Would Prohibit Free Race Passes

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A bill to prohibit issuance of free passes to horse race tracks in Arkansas was introduced in the House today by Monroe Rep. George Slag.

The measure contains an emergency clause and could be put into effect before the 1959 meeting at Oaklawn Park in Hot Springs. The meeting begins Feb. 21.

Slag's bill provides for a fine. The legislator was not available for comment on the bill but one House member said "this is to take some pressure off of us."

Each state legislator gets eight days to track.

"We have hundreds of requests which we cannot fill," the House member said.

Except The LORD Build The HOUSE They Labor In Vain That Build It

LIGHT

GOD said, "Let there be light: and there was light."

How much is shining on you? Are you just sitting there — oblivious to the needs of your fellow-man — and inactive in your church?

Then a cloud is hiding you! Want to be a reflector?

Then get out in the open — out where the light can beam upon you.

Absorb aplenty of it... enough to purify and light up the dark corners of your soul. Lead your family and others to church. That is being a reflector of real light... true light.

For, "God is light and in Him is no darkness." 1 John 1-5.

You In The Church
